Evaluating Business and Industry Training Leslie Steven May,Carol Ann Moore,Stephen J. Zammit,2012-12-06 In the abstract, training is seen as valuable by most people in business and industry. However, in the rush of providing training programs on time and within budget, evaluation of training is frequently left behind as a nice to have addition, if practical. In addition, the training function itself is left with the dilemma of proving its worth to management without a substantive history of evaluation. This book is designed to provide managers, educators, and trainers alike the opportunity to explore the issues and benefits of evaluating business and industry training. The purpose is to motivate more effective decisions for training investments based on information about the value of training in attaining business goals. Without evaluation, the value of specific training efforts cannot be adequately measured, the value of training investments overall cannot be fully assessed, and the contributions of the training function to the corporation's goals cannot be duly recognized. Articles are grouped into three sections, althou~h many themes appear across sections. The first section estabhshes the context of training evaluation in a business organization. The second section emphasizes evaluation of training products and services; and the third section discusses costs and benefits of evaluation, and communication and use of evaluation results in decision making. In Section I, the context of training evaluation is established from a variety of perspectives. First, training and trainin~ evaluation are discussed in the context of corporate strateglc goals.

Training & Retraining Sigmund Tobias,John Dexter Fletcher,2000 An overview of research in the field of corporate training. Sponsored by the American Psychological Association, it contains contributions from professionals in the academic, government and business worlds. It brings together published findings and best practice examples, showing trainers how to apply educational psychology in their work whilst educating psychologists on the special problems and concerns faced by trainers today. Articles cover ad hoc training practices and cost and effectiveness assessments, relevant technologies such as telecommunications and computer applications, instructional tatics and strategies and much more.

What Makes a Great Training Organization? Doug Harward,Ken Taylor,Russ Hall,2014 All learning leaders want their organizations to be perceived as great, but what makes a 'great' training organization? This book presents findings that are based on the data, information, and experiences shared with Training Industry, Inc. by several hundred learning professionals over a five year span, from 2008 to 2012. It identified 8 process capabilities, which have been identified as the key functions in the design, delivery and management of corporate workforce training.

    Paid Training John Cerasani,2011-12 John Cerasani is an entrepreneurial success through a number of business endeavors. With his practical approach and business savvy, Cerasani has proven that the underdog can compete and win against larger, more established competitors. Johns founding and subsequent success of Northwest Comprehensive, Inc. serves as the motivation in inspiring him to create the message of Paid Training. Paid Training is ideal for anyone who ever considered becoming a business owner as well as anyone who is ready to be open-minded enough to understand the pitfalls of working for someone else in the long term. John draws on his business experiences to demonstrate the path to enable any reader to compete and win as a start-up operation while going head-to-head against multimillion-dollar organizations. The message of Paid Training not only frowns upon the idea of working for someone else, it shuns the idea of trying and failing multiple times before you get it right. Paid Training enables readers to get it right . . . the first time.

    Customized Job Training for Business and Industry Robert J. Kopecek,1984 This sourcebook describes and analyzes contracted customized training for business and industry provided by community colleges. First, Customized Job Training: Should Your Community College Be Involved? by Robert J. Kopecek identifies issues to be considered in program decision making and suggests an organizational model for program delivery. Customized Job Training and Credit Programs, by Robert G. Clarke, outlines similarities and differences between traditional degree programs and industrial training programs and offers guidelines for community colleges entering the field. Providing Customized Job Training through the Traditional Administrative Organizational Model, by William A. Connor, advocates the centralized organizational model. In Developing Customized Programs for Steel and Other Heavy Industries, Philip R. Day, Jr. describes Dundalk Community College's unique approach to customized training. North Carolina: A Statewide System of Training for New and Existing Industries, by H. James Owen, provides an example of successful government-education-industry collaboration. Worker Education for Improved Productivity: The Role of New York State Community College Contract Courses, by W. Gary McGuire, describes the benefits of legislative, corporate, and educational cooperation in terms of increased worker productivity and improved college-employer relations. In Partnerships for Employee Training: Implications for Education, Business, and Industry, David B. Luther provides an industrial perspective on customized job training. Components of Successful Training Programs, by Dorothy J. Kaplan, reviews specific practices to ensure program effectiveness. Finally, an annotated bibliography of relevant ERIC documents is presented. (LAL)
