Statistics for Every Fan Carl Fetteroll, 2020-01-14 Statistics can be intimidating. 76% of Americans can't express 1 in 1000 as a percent. Unless it's sports statistics! Fights peaked in the 2001 NHL season with 42% of games having at least one fight. Unfamiliar examples can make learning statistics difficult. Statistics for Every Fan introduces statistics through sports. Basic methods of data analysis are illustrated with sports statistics collected on professional and college players and teams. The book is organized as an introductory statistics text and can be used for a one semester introductory class. There are three parts: descriptive statistics, predictive statistics and inferential statistics. It is suitable for students in sport management and sports journalism, as well as students in other majors who just love sports. The class that inspired this book has been taught at Springfield College for the last ten years, and has grown in section offerings every year. NOTE: The exercises in this book use Minitab(TM) for analysis. BLACK and WHITE edition.

Springfield Ginger Cruickshank,1999-10 Situated at the crossroads of New England, Springfield, Massachusetts, was founded in 1636 by twelve families led by William Pynchon, who named the settlement after his birthplace in England. This book, the first of a two-volume set, is a collection of many never-before-seen photographs that tell the story of this city's history. Springfield is a city of firsts. The first successful gasoline-powered engine was built by the Duryea brothers here; the first U.S. musket was made at the Springfield Armory; and in 1891, resident Dr. James Naismith invented the game of basketball. The city's ties to the U.S. military are illustrated here, as are its many religious and ethnic communities. Within these pages, we can see images of a very different Springfield, including buildings much changed or long gone, and people remembered now in family albums.

Collaboration--across Campus, Across Town, and With K-12 Schools Jill F. Russell,Richard B. Flynn,2013-12-16 First Published in 2000. This is Volume 75, Number 3 of the Peabody Journal of Education and focuses on collaboration across campus, town and with K-12 schools. The issue provides descriptions of a range of ways in which universities and schools and colleges of education can provide leadership for collaborative ventures involving the wider community. The collaborative undertakings include working with community agencies, other schools or colleges within or external to the institution, P-12 schools, and business groups. The rationale for the theme is that in today's world the problems we are facing are so complex that solutions can no longer be generated and successfully implemented in a vacuum. Cross-disciplinary and cross-sector collaboration is required to have the desired impact. This necessitates collaboration.
