History of the Maine State College and the University of Maine Merritt Caldwell Fernald,2012-08-01 Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts (1) We have not used OCR(Optical Character Recognition), as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos. (2) In books where there are images such as portraits, maps, sketches etc We have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images, so they represent accurately the original artefact. Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts, we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy.

University of Maine Debra Wright,Bob Briggs,1999-10-01 Established by the Morrill Act of 1862, Maine State College officially opened its doors in September of 1868 as a primarily agricultural school. By 1897, the Maine state legislature voted to change the name of the school to University of Maine, and expand the focus toward liberal arts. The flagship school of the University of Maine system, the Orono campus has had a significant impact on Maine life from its scientific inventions to its cultural contributions. Located on the banks of the Stillwater River, the university has always attracted motivated undergraduates and graduate students. From its earliest days, it has worked to be the state's center of learning, discovery, and service to the public. Here the history of the state's land grant university from 1865 to 1940 is presented in hundreds of striking photographs. They tell the story of the the school, including its academic, social, athletic, and administrative history as it grew over its first 75 years.

History of the Maine State College and the University of Maine (Classic Reprint) Merritt Caldwell Fernald,2017-10-11

Excerpt from History of the Maine State College and the University of Maine The loyalty and service of Dr. Fernald to the University surpass anything that mere words can express. He opened the institution in 1868. His ability and wisdom found expression in the early plans and courses. He had the pleasure of seeing it grow to a great power in the State-thus proving the worth of the foundation which he had laid. It is, therefore, no cause for wonder that he loved the University as he loved his own. Not very long before his death, the members of his family were discussing the question of buying a burial lot in Mount Hope Cemetery. He listened attentively to the discussion and closed it by saying: You may do as you please. I shall be buried on the hill in the cemetery across the river from the University in sight of the buildings which I love and where I have lived and worked. Whether as professor, acting president, president, or professor emeritus, Dr. Fernald gave to the University of Maine the fine and superior service that his splendid character, his broad education, and his unusual personal qualities made possible. His was a nature of singular sweetness and kindness. His fellow men loved him. They knew that he was sound and true, and therefore they did not hesitate to anchor themselves to him. No man ever connected with the University endeared himself to the students as did Dr. Fernald. The mention of his name to a group of alumni always arouses great interest and brings sincere applause. He has passed from us but he has left an enduring monument in the great institution to which he devoted his life and of which he was a part from its beginning to the day of his departure.
