An Introduction to Modern Timekeeping and Time Transfer Parameswar Banerjee, Demetrios Matsakis, 2023-10-01

This book provides a comprehensive, systematic description of modern timekeeping and its specializations. Introductory chapters discuss the concept of time and its definition, then briefly look at pre-Atomic Era timekeeping to set the stage for the introduction of the atomic clock. Subsequent chapters focus on concepts such as frequency stability and measurement uncertainty, as well as computer network time-synchronization protocols including Network Time Protocol (NTP) and Precise Time Protocol (PTP). The book then delves into the nuts and bolts of the Global Navigation Satellite Systems (GNSS), Two-Way Satellite Time and Frequency Transfer, and Optical Time and Frequency Transfer. Timescale theory is then described as a way to combine clock data, and the algorithms and procedures used to generate Coordinated Universal Time (UTC) are given. Finally, there is a look at modern applications of timekeeping and time transfer. Featuring a glossary of all key terms, this book is highly recommended for trained or incoming physicists, engineers, or mathematicians working, for example, in manufacturing or timing laboratories. Additionally, it is suitable for use in introductory university courses dealing with the subject of timekeeping.

Time Transfer Mark Roland Langdale, 2019-07-23 It's hard to pinpoint the exact date the magic appeared in the FA Cup.

Perhaps it was there from the beginning when the very first ball was kicked, or perhaps it first appeared in 1923 – the year the final was first played at Wembley, known then as the Empire Stadium. Just as the Premier and Champions Leagues were battling it out for the top spot, the magic disappeared, much to the fans disappointment. Can the Football Association bring the magic back to the cup, or will they be powerless to act to restore the magic, like old wizards who no longer possess the magic touch?

The 2nd International Symposium on Rail Transit Comprehensive Development (ISRTCD) Proceedings Haishan

Xia, Yunan Zhang, 2014-03-19 With the increasing sophistication of urban rail networks, the combined effects of rail transit on urban development are more and more complex and in-depth, and large-scale rail transit construction and operation have placed new demands on planning, construction, investment and financing. This main aim of these proceedings is to study and explore theoretical progress, methodological innovation and lessons learned in aspects of the planning stage, urban planning, architectural design, development and construction, safety systems, management support, etc. involved in the process of comprehensive utilization along urban rail transit lines and in the development and utilization of the surrounding land, in order to provide a platform for decision-makers and researchers involved in urban rail transit construction, urban construction and development.

Dependable Computing Marco Vieira,Joao Carlos Cunha,2013-11-13 This book constitutes the thoroughly refereed proceedings of the 14 the European Workshop on Dependable Computing, EWDC 2013, held in Coimbra, Portugal, in May 2013. The 9 full papers and 6 short papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from 24 submissions. Also included in the volume are 6 fast abstracts presenting work in progress or new ideas in the dependability area. The papers are organized in topical sections on wireless sensor networks; cloud computing and services; testing and fault detection, fault injection and benchmarking and dependable and secure computing.

Mobility Dejan S. Milojević, Frederick Douglass, Richard Wheeler, 1999 The future of computing ever-increasingly lies in ever-increasing mobility in which computers continue their network operations while physically changing their location, and code moves from system to system performing its designated tasks throughout a network. This book brings together in one single resource the leading edge of research and practice in three areas of mobility: process migration, mobile computing, and mobile agents. Presented chronologically, the papers in this book--each written by leading experts in that particular area--track the development of critical technologies that have influenced mobility. Introductions by the editors and original afterwords by many of the papers' authors provide information on implementation and practical application, technological context, and updates on the most recent advances. The book highlights many common challenges and solutions inherent in various aspects of mobility: infrastructure, scalability, security, standards, robustness, naming and locating mobile entities, and more. Individual papers describe specific research and development in each of the three major areas, covering such topics as: An analysis of process migration from the earliest work to contemporary commercial systems Barriers to effective mobile connectivity, mobile IP, and ubiquitous computing Descriptions of various mobile agent systems, such as Telescript, Aglets, Agent TCL, and the mobile agent system standard (MASIF) This selection of influential papers illustrates the evolution of mobile technology as well as the state of the art of one of the most significant trends in computing.

Transfer Coordination Model and Real-time Strategy for Inter-modal Transit Services Eui-Hwan Chung,2009 In multimodal transit networks with several intersecting lines and modes, travel through the network typically requires one or more transfers among transit lines and modes, and as such transfer time is a significant component of transit travel time from the perspective of passengers. Accordingly, efficient transfers are very important to increase the attractiveness and productivity of transit service. This study presents two approaches for the provision of efficient transfers: schedule coordination and real-time CP (Connection Protection) control. However, even though timetables among intersecting lines may be properly coordinated, an operational control method is necessary to maintain coordinated transfers, which may occasionally be disrupted due to unexpected delays of transit vehicles. A promising approach is to utilize real-time CP control. It involves holding a transit unit in order to wait for another transit unit that is planned to provide a coordinated transfer but has been delayed. This study also develops a CP model to apply a holding control to a receiving run in order to protect the scheduled connection. It incorporates the probabilistic nature of transit operations in formulating a cost function, and accordingly makes more robust decisions for control. The developed model is evaluated and compared with previous models to demonstrate its ability to improve transfer efficiency and reduce the waiting times of affected passengers. The coordination of transit schedules can reduce transfer time significantly. This dissertation develops an optimization model for generating transit timetables that minimize transfer-related times. The model attempts to find an optimal timetable by shifting the existing timetable and/or adding holding time to the timetable to minimize delays associated with transfers from a feeder route to a receiving route. Analytical models are developed to estimate the waiting time of the transfer passengers, and also to determine the influence of the schedule modification on the waiting times of non-transfer passengers. The developed model is evaluated through a case study, and the results show that the model reduces effectively the total transfer and waiting times through the modification of the current schedule.

Time Use and Transfers in the Americas B. Piedad Urdinola, Jorge A. Tovar, 2019-03-27 This book provides a comparison of the measurement in time and monetary units of unpaid domestic work in Colombia, Costa Rica, Uruguay, and the Hispanic ethnicity in the United States. A standardized technique allows the development of comparable estimates across countries per age and gender which reveal specific behavioral patterns over the life cycle. A mixture of economic conditions, social norms, and demographic trends provide insightful explanations for the unequal burden that women and girls carry when dealing with unpaid domestic activities, an economically significant but traditionally neglected activity. As such, the book is of interested to practitioners in all social sciences, particularly sociologists, demographers, economists, and policymakers.

Wireless Sensor Networks Ibrahim M. M. El Emary, S. Ramakrishnan, 2013-08-28 Although there are many books available on WSNs, most are low-level, introductory books. Fundamental Texts on European Private Law Oliver Radley-Gardner,Reinhard Zimmermann,Hugh Beale,2003-10-31
Among the most significant legal developments of our time is the emergence of a European private law. The European Union enacts directives which profoundly affect the practice,teaching and study of core areas of 'classical' private law. Internationally commissions have formulated principles of European trusts, contract and commercial law. Furthermore, uniform private law can be found in a number of international conventions. This book gathers together fundamental texts from these three sources into one convenient volume. Its emphasis is on general civil and commercial law, particularly on the obligations and property aspects of these. Fully updated, it contains the recent directives in the areas of E-Commerce, Electronic Signatures and Late Payments. It also makes available for the first time English language versions of a number of texts by international commissions. This book is a sister volume to the original German and the subsequent Spanish version. With full references to the implementation of the directives in Denmark, EIRE, Finland, Sweden and the United Kingdom, this book will be a useful resource for practitioners, students and teachers working in the field of European private law.

A Practical Guide to Stage Lighting Steven Louis Shelley,2013-10-30 Combining theory and application, A Practical Guide to Stage Lighting provides a comprehensive analysis of lighting systems along with examples and illustrations of the technical tools and methods used in the industry. An entertaining and educational read, author Steven Louis Shelley draws from his 35+ years of diverse experience to explain how to get the job done along with real-life examples of projects from start to finish. Learn why some techniques are successful while others fail with 'Shelley's Notes' and 'Shelley's Soapbox,' all with a humor that guides you through complex problems and concepts. Highlights include: -Over 100 new topics, including analysis and application of the three categories of collaboration; a detailed examination of production meetings and one-on-one meetings; and meeting checklists with management and the creative team. -Over 50 new illustrations, including Shelley's Periodic Table of Fundamental Lighting Systems; groundplans, sections, and front elevations that illustrate basic system wash configurations for each direction of light. -Analysis, calculation, and step-by-step technical construction of each lighting system in the Hokey light plot. -Explanation of a manufacturer's cut sheet, and how to apply basic formulas to determine the beam size, footcandles, and gel transmission for lighting instruments. -Updated process of pre-programming computer lighting consoles prior to the load-in. -Comprehensive overview of archiving paperwork and softcopy for a production. Students and professionals will benefit from experience-based tips and techniques to prepare and execute a lighting design, along with learning how to avoid common traps.

Adaptive and Intelligent Systems Abdelhamid Bouchachia, 2011-09-25 This book constitutes the proceedings of the International Conference on Adaptive and Intelligent Systems, ICAIS 2011, held in Klagenfurt, Austria, in September 2011. The 36 full papers included in these proceedings together with the abstracts of 4 invited talks, were carefully reviewed and selected from 72 submissions. The contributions are organized under the following topical sections: incremental learning; adaptive system architecture; intelligent system engineering; data mining and pattern recognition; intelligent agents; and computational intelligence.

Reducing Transfer Times of Patients Admitted to the Intensive Care Unit from the Emergency Department Kelsie Montgomery, 2017 Background: Communication failure between healthcare providers is the leading cause of sentinel events. To emphasize the critical need to improve such communication, TJC cited improving effectiveness of communication as one of the National Patient Safety Goals. Handoff tools have been used to improve communication, however, in its review TJC found that over 1/3 of patient handoff tools that are currently used are defective. Foreground: Currently, transfer times have been reported to be delayed at the facility. Currently no standardized handoff tool exists for critically ill patients being admitted to the intensive care unit (ICU) from the emergency department (ED). EBP Framework: Rosswurm and Larrabee's EBP model was used to guide the project in conjunction with Battey's Humanizing Nursing Communication Theory and Ethics of Humanizing Nursing Communication. Methods: The project manager held an educational in-service for staff of the ED and ICU to educate about the revised hand off tool that was implemented. Data was collected prior to implementation on current transfer times through TeleTracking, the patient tracking software in place at the facility. The revised transfer tool was implemented for one month. During the month, times were tracked weekly and at the end of one month time. An overall comparison was done to evaluate effectiveness off the handoff tool. Results were disseminated to staff during regularly scheduled staff meetings. Feedback was gathered at that time from participants and anonymously via a suggestion box. Data was analyzed with the help of clinical mentor. Results: The baseline data, with a sample size of 963 admissions, had a mean transfer time of 1:33 (HH:MM). During the project implementation period there were 202 admissions which ended having an average time of 1:45, a 12 minute increase from the baseline sample. When looking at the data by week, the times decrease from week 1 compared to week 4. Using MiniTab statistical software to compare week 1 times to week 4, no statistical difference was noted between the transfer times in week 1 and those in week 4. While no statistical difference was noted, clinical significance was noted in comments from participants. Conclusion: The implementation of the hand off tool did not decrease transfer times. Feedback gathered from the nursing staff included comments that the handoff report went more smoothly, less clarifying questions had to be asked, all pertinent information was given during the handoff, and the verbal report was more organized.
